

The Effectiveness of Florida Department of Corrections Community Correctional Centers as Transitional Facilities

Vivian W. Stallworth

The purpose of this study was to determine the effectiveness of community correctional centers (CCC's) as transitional facilities in the Florida Department of Corrections. This research focused on three areas: 1) the effectiveness of the current transitional process used in the centers; 2) the level of uniformity in the process; and 3) changes needed in the existing process. Results of surveys which were completed by each of 30 CCC's in the department are presented. Several recommendations are offered in regard to the centers.