Potential Indicators of Suspicious Behavior on the Internet

What Should I Consider Suspicious?

Individuals who:

- Prepare or distribute a martyrdom or extremist last will video/manifesto
- Produce or share videos, media, and/or messaging promoting foreign terrorist organizations, violent extremists, or mass killers
- Communicate intent or seek justification for a planned violent act
- Attempt to mobilize others to violence, especially family members and peers

Other suspicious activities that may not be indicative of violent plotting on their own:

- Expressing acceptance of violence as a necessary means to achieve ideological goals or address perceived grievances
- Creating, joining, or actively participating in online groups or communities that promote violent extremism or mass violence
- Sending unusual goodbyes or suspicious post-death instructions to family or peers
- Communicating with violent extremists or mass killers online
- Seeking or claiming relationships with incarcerated or infamous violent extremists or mass killers
- Expressing a desire to travel to conflict zone to fight with/support an extremist group, or idealizing life among violent extremist groups
- Attempting to illegally acquire weapons, tactical equipment and/or ammunition
- Praising successful or attempted extremist attacks or mass killings

It is important to remember that Americans have a constitutional right to express speech or beliefs that may be controversial. Speech or expression of beliefs by themselves is not a justification for investigating anyone. Just because someone's speech, actions, beliefs, appearance, or way of life is different, does not mean that he or she is suspicious.

What Should I Do?

- ✓ Report threats (made verbally or on social media) to law enforcement
- ✓ Save copies of any online postings displaying suspicious behaviors
- ✓ If something seems wrong, notify law enforcement authorities with detailed descriptions of behaviors
