

2019 AMBER Alert Success Stories

September 2019 - Marion County

An eleven-month-old female was abducted by her father. The father murdered the child's mother and fled with the child. Due to the father's behavior the child was believed to be in danger. The father dropped the child off at a relative's house. After the relative received the AMBER Alert, the relative took the child to the law enforcement agency. The child was safe and unharmed.

September 2019 - Duval County

A thirteen-year-old male was abducted by an older male. The suspect physically battered the child's mother and fled with the child. The suspect dropped the child off at a relative's house. The relative did not know the child was missing until seeing the AMBER Alert on social media. The relative contacted law enforcement. The child was safe and unharmed.
