

FDLE Quick Reaction Force

Quick Reaction Force training will involve live fire courses where students are working through crowds of people and engaging targets. They will work in two to four-man elements providing an over watch detail when tasked with eliminating threats and communicating as a team while dealing with the challenges involved in a mass shooting scenario.

Quick Reaction Force training will focus on the following:

- Team Communication
- Moving and Engaging Targets
- Rapid deployments from a simulated vehicle
- Observation skills
- Decision making

FDLE will provide all props used in the course. Courses are offered across Florida free of charge. Students are required to bring:

- Handgun and 100 rounds
- Rifle with sling and 200 rounds
- Eye protection
- Ear protection
- Helmet
- Ballistic Vest
- Hydration

The hosting agency will be required to provide paper targets and will be responsible for scheduling ranges and classroom.

Class size will determine time limit on drills. A typical class size is 20 students. A minimum of 15 students is desired. For individual instructors or smaller agencies, accommodations can be made or can be made or combined with other classes.
